My next choice is the one offered by the Senator from Illinois, (Mr. Si.ields;) but if neither of these can pass, I shall then vote for the proposition of the Senator from New York. That, I have said, is a mere welcome tendered to our guest; and really, sir, I cannot treat with becoming gravity the fear that its adoption is to raise a storm of indignation against our country which is almost to blot us out from the record of nations. Never could eause and effect be more disproportionate.
